by Sunday 20 August 2023

Aim

The NZIER Early Career Economics Leader Award has been inaugurated, organised, and underwritten by the New Zealand Institute of Economic Research to recognise and encourage the advancement of economics in New Zealand.

Nominations

Applications are sought from a wide range of fields of economic endeavour. Anyone may nominate persons for the Award, and this includes self-nominations. There is no objection to the nominee assisting the nominator with the application if the nominator is a third party.

An Application must comprise:

- A completed nomination form, signed by the nominator, and the nominee (if nominated by a third party) accepting the nomination and agreeing to adhere to the rules of the Award.
- A brief curriculum vitae allowing the Selection Panel to identify that eligibility conditions have been met.
- Up to three pieces of work produced over the last three years by the candidate. These pieces may be published, unpublished and can include postgraduate theses. They must, however, be freely accessible to any third party, citable and describable. If this work is jointly authored, the candidate is expected to have been the primary author and why this is the case for the relevant piece(s) of work.
- Work that should not be a general contribution over the lifetime of the candidate.
- A detailed letter provided by the applicant that explains why they regard this body of work constitutes a significant contribution to economics in New Zealand over the past three years.

Conditions

By applying for this Award, the nominators and nominees are accepting the conditions of the Award. The judges' decision as to the interpretation of the rules and choice of the winner will be final. The decision will remain confidential and embargoed prior to the NZIER Cocktail Function on 26 October 2023.

As a condition of the Award, the winner would be required to give an address and/or to produce a piece of Public Good work that explains, in plain English, why their work has made a significant contribution to economics in New Zealand over the past three years.

In the event of the Panel being unable to identify an outstanding contribution, no Award would be made in that round.

Role of NZIER

NZIER will act as the secretariat and organiser.

The name will be the NZIER Early Career Economics Leader Award to recognise this role. NZIER should not necessarily be assumed to hold the views of awardees.
